
Shannon & Manch and Savile Group Announce International Alliance

Expanded Reach Serves Top Law Firms with Legal Talent Management Needs

Shannon & Manch, LLP, the largest and oldest legal consulting and career management firm in the US, and Savile Group, PLC, one of the United Kingdom's leading human resources consultancies, today announced the formation of a transatlantic alliance that will allow both consultancies to help top law firms and legal departments drive business results by leading edge talent management strategies.

Law firms are facing a wealth of legal talent challenges. They also have very specific needs. Through the new partnership, legal talent management powerhouse, Shannon & Manch, will offer its exclusive legal industry-focused coaching, training, and lawyer development consulting services both nationally and internationally through the expanded network of highly skilled career advisors and consultants. The Savile Group, with its long track record of delivering career transition, executive coaching, and training can now broaden its legal industry expertise on an international scale. Together, the alliance provides law firms and legal departments with seamless solutions for providing the highest quality support to their lawyers.

"We are very excited to be joining forces with the Savile Group. By broadening our reach, we are able to assist our clients as they globalize along with the rest of the world," said Sue Manch, Principal, Shannon & Manch, LLP. The combined team of career advisors and consultants will be the largest in the legal industry.

"As the major law firms expand on a global basis, our association with Shannon and Manch will enable us to supply our legal sector focused services on an international scale. Together with Shannon and Manch, we will be able to meet the demand for standardized, consistent quality services in both the UK and USA" said Nigel McEwen, Legal Services Director, Savile Group.
